Yearly Table of Contents

Volume 39 (2002)

David Samper
Cannibalizing Kids: Rumor and Resistance in Latin America 1

Véronique Campion-Vincent
Organ Theft Narratives as Medical and Social Critique 33

Bill Ellis
Why Is a Lucky Rabbit's Foot Lucky? Body Parts as Fetishes 51

Moira Smith
The Flying Phallus and the Laughing Inquisitor:
Penis Theft in the Malleus Maleficarum 85

Barbara Henkes and Richard Johnson
Silences across Disciplines: Folklore Studies,
Cultural Studies, and History 125

Eric L. Ball
Where Are the Folk? The Cretan Mantinada
as Placed Literature 147

Herman Roodenburg
Making an Island in Time: Dutch Folklore Studies,
Painting, Tourism, and Craniometry around 1900 173

Sadhana Naithani
To Tell a Tale Untold: Two Folklorists in Colonial India 201

Sarah Strauss
The Master's Narrative: Swami Sivananda and the Transnational Production of Yoga 217

Kimberly J. Lau
This Text Which Is Not One: Dialectics of Self and Culture in Experimental Autoethnography 243